The report covers:

2. Priority Setting

The COVID-19 Pandemic was a challenging time for the many and even during 2022, we, the Council still continued to face a number of challenges. However, the pandemic has allowed us to redefine and evaluate our strategies, future goals and plans. What was previously the Council’s response to the pandemic, for most part has now become ‘a new business as usual’ model.

The four themes identified for further improvement as the future Council’s priorities have been shaped by Councillors across our Cabinet and Overview and Scrutiny functions, these being;

- Improvement in Internal and external stakeholder engagement, consultation and participation
- Development of the Integrated Impact Assessments (IIAs)
- Sustainability of Resources and Resilience of Workforce
- Members Training due to the high intake of new members

These are detailed further in the Council’s Annual Governance Statement

3.1 Assessment of Our Wellbeing Objectives

The Council set its Well-being Objectives in to meet the requirements of the Well-being of Future Generations (Wales) Act 2015.

Designated public bodies are required to work individually and collectively to improve well-being in Wales. The seven well-being goals and the five ways of working set a general purpose for public bodies. They also aim to ensure better decisions by:

- considering the long-term
- prevention
- integrated working
- working collaboratively
- being inclusive of people of all ages.

Further details on the Well-being of Future Generations (Wales) Act 2015 (FGA) and the seven wellbeing goals can be found by using this link.

The section ‘Future Generations – Five Ways of Working Case Studies’ provides examples of how we have met the ‘Future Generations’ ways of working in some specific area of work.

Our Well-being Objectives reflect the ‘Impacts’ we intend to make through the actions and activities within each priority. An assessment of the progress against each Objective is made as part of the overall performance for each priority.

- There has been a real community focus for some of the activities, including cooking for individuals who are homeless and the upcycling of furniture with participants, developing a greater awareness of the importance of community and an understanding of others who may be less fortunate than themselves.
- For a number of individuals, this intervention has been the key to enable them to leave the house and start to see an improvement in their mental health, with many now re-engaging with school or further/higher education. The intervention has also supported some of the young people not to self-harm and is having a positive impact on self-worth and wellbeing.

Education and Inclusion Service Collaboration with Speech and Language Colleagues In BCUHB

- The Communication and Language Advisory Support Service (CLASS) has worked collaboratively with speech and language colleagues in BCHUB to roll out an evidence-based intervention package to support all pupil aged 3 to 7 with delayed attention, language and communication needs. This project has been a priority given the significant impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on children's communication skills.

The provision is targeted at learners who have below average language skills, with 45% being identified as being significantly below.
- Impact data collated so far shows a pleasing level of improvement following the intervention with 35% of learners demonstrating age-appropriate language skills after following the 10-week programme and a reduction to 25% of those still presenting with a significant level of need, for whom, additional targeted provision will be made.

7. Future Generations (Wales) Act 2015 - Five Ways of Working

The following case studies are just a few examples of positive performance during 2022/23 and demonstrate how the Council considered the five ways of working.

Case Study 1: Implementation of Electric Vehicle (EV) Charging Points in Council Owned Car Parks

In October 2018, Cabinet approved the Councils strategy to adopt the role of an ‘enabler’ to facilitate the implementation of electric vehicle (EV) charging points rather than assuming the role of a direct provider. Due to the technological risks associated with this fast-moving sector, this approach eliminated the risk of the County being burdened with outdated / superseded infrastructure whilst also facilitating the Council to enter into long term lease agreement with specific suppliers providing long term income potential.

Following the successful award of grant funding through Cadwyn Clywyd, the Council commissioned a feasibility study to identify the most suitable locations across the County for the implementation of publicly accessible EV charging infrastructure taking into consideration key criteria such as business need and financial viability.

Upon completion of the above study and following identification of the Councils immediate priority sites, the Council were successful in obtaining ‘On-Street Residential Charge-point Scheme’ (ORCS) funding, which enabled the installation of 15 Dual EV chargers to be successfully installed at the following 8 locations in January of this year (2023).

Site	Location Type	Charger Specification
Griffiths Square, Mold	Residential / Town Centre	Fast chargers have been utilised within these locations due to the predicted nature of usage. *The installation of x15 Dual EV chargers enables a maximum of 30 vehicles to charge at any one time.
Richard Heights, Flint	Residential / Town Centre
Castle Street, Flint	Tourism / Residential / Leisure
Allt Goch, Flint	Residential / Town Centre
Pierce Street, Queensferry	Local Centre
Tower Gardens, Holywell	Public / Local Centre
Precinct Way, Buckley	Local Centre
Pavilion Leisure Centre, Flint	Leisure Centre / Local Centre

As required under the ORCS Scheme, residents have 24/7 unrestricted access to all car park locations to enable them to charge their electric vehicles both during the day and overnight. The EV charging bays satisfy the requirements of disabled users and are marked and signed bilingually. Car Park Legal Orders have also been amended to reflect the implementation EV charging bays and can be enforced effectively by the Councils Enforcement Officers.

The aim of this project is to kick-start the development of the counties EV charging network whilst also stimulating Private Sector investment (as defined within the authority's approved strategy to act as an 'enabler'). The implementation of charge-points not only provides the county with much needed infrastructure but will also serve as the catalyst required to increase local confidence, thus providing a much needed boost to EV ownership across the region.

Long Term

Implementation of the Councils first phase of EV chargers will facilitate the behavioural change required for residents to switch to more environmentally friendly and sustainable modes of transport. The visual presence of infrastructure will have a positive effect on public awareness and display the authority's outward commitment to climate change and future vision for a zero carbon future as defined within Central and Welsh Government legislation.

The move to low carbon transport options aligns itself with the long term aspirations of The Environment (Wales) Act 2016, The Well-Being of Future Generations (Wales) Act 2015 and The Air Quality Standards (Wales) Regulations 2010. The concept is also strongly endorsed within the Council Plan under the priority of a 'Green Council', for which is reinforced by the Council's approach to integrated and sustainable transport.

Prevention

Expansion of the Counties EV charging network will reinforce the Council's commitment to climate change whilst also facilitating a vision for a zero carbon future as defined within Welsh Government legislation. Implementation of the required infrastructure will also boost the Council's status as a 'key player' within the region, thus reducing the risk of public abandonment in terms of tourism, residential and business growth.

The adoption of electric vehicles for use on the highway network has obvious benefits to air quality through the reduction of Co2 emissions. Improved air quality will benefit the Council's most deprived communities, who often reside within the counties most densely populated areas. This will also greatly assist the Council to achieve decarbonisation targets set within Central and Welsh Government legislation.

Integration

The adoption of electric vehicles is key to the success of a sustainable, integrated transport network and will form an integral element of the Councils forthcoming review of its integrated transport strategy whilst also contributing to the pan Wales EV charging network.

Whilst a regional strategy has yet to be developed, it is hoped that the implementation of the above project will facilitate the development of a future joint procurement framework, in order to standardise the provision of charging infrastructure, operating models and maintenance, thus enabling a collaborative, and regional approach to the network of charge points across North Wales.

Not only does a regional approach recognise the relationship between cross-border travel movements and sustainability of local economies, it would also have the advantage of injecting a much needed element of consistency and availability of charging infrastructure. Should a standardisation of the region's EV charging network be achieved, there is no doubt that this will be the catalyst required to increase local confidence, thus providing a much-needed boost to EV ownership across the region.

Collaboration

To accommodate both existing and forecasted demands for EV's and the associated charging infrastructure, Flintshire County Council have been working in collaboration with Welsh Government (WG), neighbouring authorities and specialist consultants.

The Councils overarching EV strategy recognises and supports the importance of collaboration with the Private Sector (as defined within the authority's approved strategy to act as an 'enabler'). It also recognises the importance of strategic cross-border movements to the local economy in terms of commuter movements, business and tourism.

The Council have also developed a collaborative relationship with key industry stakeholders. The recently implemented infrastructure has been registered on the national charge-point registry and other live status maps such as Zap-Map where users can view the availability of the charging points.

The recently implemented scheme was 25% match funded by Flintshire County Council.

Involvement

Completion of studies thus far demonstrates the Council's engagement with key stakeholders both cross border and within Welsh Government.

Representing local members were involved throughout the duration of the project and have been instrumental in raising both awareness and the requirements of their local communities.

Forming part of the ORCS grant application, Flintshire County Council have developed an information gathering questionnaire which will be sent to the effected communities in order to inform further expansion of the Councils EV network.

A section on the Flintshire County Council website has also been developed to raise the awareness of the charge points and to promote their use for residents and the public. Please see link below for more information.

Case Study 2: New Grass Cutting Policy that Promotes Biodiversity

Grass cutting is an important aspect of maintaining public spaces, but traditional grass cutting methods can have negative impacts on the environment and biodiversity. The new policy adopted by Flintshire County Council takes a more sustainable approach to grass cutting that aims to support nature and the well-being of local communities.

The new policy considers reducing the frequency of grass cutting, leaving areas of grass uncut to allow wildflowers to grow and support biodiversity, whilst being considerate to highway safety. These approaches not only help to support biodiversity but can also provide benefits for local communities, such as improving the aesthetic appeal of public spaces, reducing noise and air pollution, and providing opportunities for people to connect with nature.

A reduction in the usage of glyphosate-based herbicide, which is frequently used to treat weeds but is categorised as "Probably carcinogenic" by the World Health Organisation, was also authorised by the council in addition to a move to manage grasslands.

Flintshire County Council has already invested grant funding in a Foamstream system that uses heated foam containing plant starches to control weeds from the Welsh Government Local Places for Nature fund. Flintshire County Council is now considering alternative methods to glyphosate use and looking at choices that are better for the community's residents and the environment. To develop a more diversified grassland asset, the improvements include establishing wildflower spaces and areas of limited mowing, backed by Welsh Government grant funds. This policy is a fantastic illustration of the kind of initiative local governments may take to improve sustainability and community well-being.

The strategy now includes measures to promote nature in each of the places it addresses, such as public open spaces and roadside verges, giving priority to road-user safety and making sure sites seem purposeful by using mowed boundaries, pathways, and when appropriate, signs.

This action is a crucial step towards establishing substantial habitats across the county, supporting essential pollinators and a healthy natural environment, which is critical for the wellbeing of communities given that just 2% of typical grassland habitats remain in the UK.

Overall, the new grass cutting policy adopted by Flintshire County Council is a step in the right direction towards encouraging sustainability and community well-being. It highlights how local governments may act in a realistic way to protect biodiversity and enhance community wellbeing while also preserving public spaces for their intended use.

Long Term

By taking a more sustainable approach to grass cutting, the council can contribute to a healthier and more resilient environment, support biodiversity, and enhance the well-being of local communities by leaving areas of grass uncut or reducing the frequency of grass cutting can allow wildflowers to grow, providing food and habitats for bees, butterflies, and other pollinators. This, in turn, supports the wider ecosystem, contributing to a healthier and more resilient environment.

By allowing wildflowers to grow and reducing the frequency of grass cutting, public spaces can become more visually appealing, contributing to a more pleasant and attractive environment for local communities into the future.

Connecting with nature has been shown to have positive effects on mental health and well-being. By promoting biodiversity and providing opportunities for people to connect with nature, the new grass cutting policy can contribute to the long-term well-being of local communities.

Prevention

Traditionally, grass cutting has been done frequently to maintain a neat appearance of public spaces, but this approach has negative impacts on the environment and biodiversity. Over time, the loss of habitats and food sources due to regular mowing can have a significant impact on the populations of pollinators such as bees and butterflies, which can in turn affect the wider ecosystem. By reducing the frequency of grass cutting and leaving areas uncut, the new policy aims to prevent the decline in biodiversity and the problems associated with it, rather than simply treating the symptoms by planting wildflowers or installing beehives in already degraded areas. In this way, the new grass cutting policy adopts a preventative approach, by aiming to address the underlying causes of the problem rather than simply responding to the symptoms. By promoting biodiversity, the policy helps to maintain a healthy and resilient ecosystem and contributes to a sustainable future for the local community.

Integration

The policy promotes an integrated approach by considering the well-being of future generations and considering the long-term impacts of the council's actions on the environment, economy, society, and culture. The policy aims to support biodiversity and create habitats for wildlife, which can have a positive impact on the local environment and also provide opportunities for educational and cultural activities.

The policy is designed to be integrated with other policies and strategies, such as the council's climate change strategy and by aligning with these wider strategies, the policy aims to support the achievement of broader sustainability commitments and to ensure that actions taken in one area do not have negative impacts on others.

Collaboration

The policy involved collaboration between different stakeholders, including the council members, local communities, Welsh Government, cross-portfolio colleagues and environmental organisations and suppliers.

The development of the new policy involved consultation and collaboration with local communities and environmental organisations, to understand their needs and concerns and to ensure that the policy was developed with their input. This collaboration helps to ensure that the policy is aligned with the needs and values of the local community and has their support.

Additionally, the policy itself promotes collaboration by encouraging local communities to take an active role in the maintenance and management of public spaces. For example, the policy may involve working with community groups to identify areas that could benefit from reduced grass cutting and to monitor the success of the new approach. This collaboration helps to build stronger relationships between the council and local communities and can also help to empower local communities to take ownership of the public spaces in their area.

Involvement

The policy can have a positive impact on the well-being of the local community by providing opportunities for people of all ages and diversity to connect with nature and to engage in outdoor activities. By creating more natural and biodiverse public spaces, the policy encourages people to spend time outdoors and can help to promote physical and mental well-being.

Case Study 3: Development of Town Centre Place Making Plans

Short Overview of Project

Welsh Government (WG) has recently outlined its strategic direction and approach for Place Making* across Wales. As part of this, WG has asked each local authority across Wales to develop 'Place Making Plans' to set out how they will identify, plan and deliver Place Making in each of their towns. WG has confirmed that having up to date Place Making Plans will be a condition to accessing grant funding for regeneration in the future.

In response to this, the Council's Regeneration Team has developed an approach to engage and consult local people and bringing together key partners and stakeholders to develop and later implement local town centre Place Making Plans. This case study relates to progress to date with the first three of seven plans to be produced for town centres across Flintshire: Buckley, Holywell and Shotton.

Place Making can be defined as a process which involves working collaboratively across sectors and disciplines to comprehensively consider the future development of a place, and if done successfully can result in the place becoming more aligned to the needs of the local population and more vibrant.*

Engaging and Consulting Local People

It is important that local people are able to be involved in shaping the emerging Place Making Plans for their town centres, and in order to capture their views and opinions, an interactive online consultation was launched in addition to face-to-face open door public consultation events being delivered.

Over 4400 local people participated in the online consultations which was operated via a website named 'Give My View' via partnership between Flintshire County Council and a company named Built-ID. A social media campaign was run to encourage local people within the vicinity of the town centres to participate in the online consultation, which was live for 17 days earlier in 2023. A significant amount of information was gathered through the online consultation, and in addition, over 130 people attended the face-to-face events to be involved in the consultation process. The local knowledge and perceptions gathered along with data and statistical information which was also gathered for each town has begun to steer the focus of our Place Making Plans and what activity is needed in our towns in the future.

Information about Place Making was made available to the public via social media, at face-to-face events and also online via the council's website: <https://www.flintshire.gov.uk/en/Business/Town-Centre-Regeneration/What-we-are-currently-working-on/Place-Making-in-Flintshire.aspx>

Long term vision / approach

Flintshire's Place Making approach is closely aligned to WG's 'Town Centre First' strategic approach which was launched in 2020, which aims over a medium to long-term period (10-15 years) to locate services and buildings in town centres to help breathe new life into town centre across Wales. This is essential in the wake of the covid-19 pandemic, declining retail sales and changes in the way town centres are used. Like most towns in the UK, Flintshire has experienced a loss of key retailers from our town centres and a general decline in the quality of what is on offer in our town centres.

The aim of the emerging Place Making Plans for town centres in Flintshire is to identify priorities and actions that are able to be addressed in the short term (within the next few years) in addition to establishing medium to longer term vision and steps to achieve this.

Prevention

The emerging place making plans aim to prevent further decline of the town centres in Flintshire – particularly issues such as declining footfall and the number of run down and vacant premises, in addition to the loss of retail businesses. Local people and key stakeholder's views and needs are being used to inform what is needed in the future to bring about positive change and create vibrancy in town centres across Flintshire. The delivery of plans to prevent the further decline of the towns is a collaborative approach involving lots of partners and stakeholders.

Integration

WG expects local authorities and their partners to put the health and vibrancy of town centres at the heart of their policies and decision making, as part of their strategic decision making and delivery of services at an operational level. The emerging Place Making Plans for Flintshire therefore play an integral part in ensuring place making activity is sustainable and well-integrated as an approach within the Council but also within the work of our partners and key stakeholders.

Collaboration

The development of Place Making Plans in Flintshire has created an excellent opportunity to work more collaboratively not just across services within the council, but also with key partners from other public, private and community sectors. Strategic and operationally focussed groups of stakeholders responsible for 'place' and 'people' based services now meet regularly to consider data, public consultation findings and the outcomes of technical reports to steer and contribute towards the development of Place Making Plans and take ownership for their implementation in the future. There is a real buzz amongst stakeholders involved who feel this approach is beneficial to them in their roles, and most importantly to current and future generations.

Involvement

The level of involvement and engagement from the public and key stakeholders during the development of the Place Making Plans for Buckley, Holywell and Shotton has been overwhelming, in fact more than three times the amount of people we anticipated would respond to the Place Making consultation. Over 1500 local people provided their contact details when completing the online consultation, wishing to be kept informed of progress and the outcome of the Place Making Plan work and the place making journey we've embarked upon. It is important that our emerging Place Making Plans are dynamic working documents that reflect the needs of our communities who have clearly taken an interest already in shaping the future of our town centres.

Case Study 4: Early Years and Family Services Speech, Language and Communication Support

Roll out of the Talkboost training allows school staff to be better equipped to support children’s speech and language development.

Talk Boost is a targeted intervention for children who need help with talking and understanding words to boost their language skills to narrow the gap between them and their peers.

Currently 86% of Flintshire schools are trained in the Talk Boost programmes. Therefore, moving forward into the next reporting period, the focus is going to be on the implementation of the programmes, ensuring staff feel equipped and confident to run the interventions with children in school and are sharing the data with the Trainers, the Speech and Language Therapy Technical Instructor and the Learning Advisor – Speech, Language and Communication, to ensure measurement and impact of the Talkboost programme.

Collaboration

Collaboration between Flintshire’s Early Years Integration and Transformation Programme and Flintshire Local Education Authority - The collaborative work between the Early Years Integration and Transformation team and the Local Education Authority has ensured the successful planning and delivery of the Talkboost Programme, as well as offering ongoing support to those schools implementing the intervention. The knowledge of early years, speech and language and education from both trainers has bolstered the project as well as helping to build and sustain good working relationships with school staff.

Integration

Adopting a collaborative approach to the delivery of the Talkboost Programme has ensured a consistent model of delivery with all primary schools being targeted and encouraged to take up the free training.

The trainers have worked hard to ensure the Talkboost programme is embedded into the school's offer to children to ensure children's speech and language development needs are supported as early as possible to help:

- Narrow the gap, allowing children to catch up with their peers
- Track Pupils progress

Involvement

By training a mix of Teachers and Teaching Assistants the Council are ensuring that school staff have access to knowledge and resources that enable them to provide additional speech and language support for all children who require it. As well as ensuring that all school staff have this additional training resource to build on their skills and knowledge. Enabling children from all backgrounds to access early support to enable them to catch up to their peers and have the best start in life, mitigating longer term problems relating to speech and language delay.

Long Term

In the short term, this process does require an investment in time from schools and partners, as well as funding to deliver the training, however the funding is currently being provided by the Early Years Integration and Transformation programme.

This investment will reinforce skills and processes over time to develop an effective intervention as required for children entering the educational system.

The longer-term impact will see improved speech and language skills in children, a higher standard of education achieved at the end of Primary school, an increase in social skills and interactions which in turn will benefit those children into adulthood allowing better opportunities for social relationships and job prospects, particularly for males, a reduction in mental health disorders and reductions in the Youth Justice system.

Prevention

Providing this training to schools and partners who work with younger children allows for a greater opportunity to make the appropriate interventions through identifying the support needed as early as possible and increasing the likelihood of all children reaching their potential future.

8. Equality

During the past 12 months the Council has signed up to Victim Support’s Hate Crime Charter, making a commitment to listen to victims of hate crime and support them to report concerns. We have extended the range of equality related courses available to employees, including offering Unconscious bias training and neuro diversity awareness training.

We have reviewed Welsh Government’s Anti-racist Wales action plan to identify actions for the Council. These will be incorporated within our new Strategic Equality Plan 2024-28. Some services have now started to review their equality data to review any disproportionality and unequal outcomes for people with protected characteristics and take action to address any identified inequalities.

We have continued to participate in awareness events and days such as Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender History month, Hate Crime awareness week and Holocaust Memorial Day.

9. Welsh Language

We are pleased to report that we have continued to support Menter Iaith Fflint a Wrecsam to celebrate Dydd Gŵyl Dewi and promote and share our Welsh heritage. Activity packs were provided to all care homes in the county, including to those within the independent sector, supporting older people to participate in the celebrations.

We are very proud of the achievements of students from Ysgol Maes Garmon, The Council’s Integrated Youth Provision (IYP) teamed up with a group of young people from Ysgol Maes Garmon for a pilot project called ‘Cân a Lles’ (“Song and Well-being”). The project was led by singer songwriter Tom Collins, who supported the students to write, compose and record their own song. The song Dal i Ddod (Still to Come), mirrored the students’ experience of the pandemic, the good and the bad. This recording became one of the songs played on the Council’s IT Help Desk, hold-line.

We received six complaints about non-compliance with the Welsh language standards. We are now putting in place actions to ensure these do not happen again. We have continued to make progress complying with the Welsh language standards, however, there have been some challenges with recruitment, in particular, the recruitment of Welsh speakers to some public facing posts. This impacts on the Council’s capacity to deliver bilingual services. We are pleased to report that the Contact Centre has successfully increased the number of Welsh speaking team members. Services complete annual self-assessments against the standards to help identify areas for improvement and we will continue to do this during 2023/24.

10. Partnership and Collaboration Activity

Flintshire has a longstanding and proud track record of partnership working. The communities it serves rightly expect the statutory and third sector partners to work together to manage shared priorities through collaboration. The Flintshire Public Services Board is at the heart of promoting a positive culture of working together, setting shared priorities and combining resources for the benefit of Flintshire, with an overall aim of improving local well-being.

The Flintshire Public Services Board was formally established in April 2016 following the Well-being of Future Generations (Wales) Act 2015 coming into effect. Realising the common challenges presented by the COVID-19 pandemic, the Flintshire Public Services Board and Wrexham Public Services Board began working together in 2020, sharing knowledge and resource, with a focus on community resilience.

Building on the success of collaborative working formed in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Flintshire Public Services Board and Wrexham Public Services Board formally merged and in January 2023 the Flintshire and Wrexham Public Services Board was formed.

Membership of the Flintshire and Wrexham Public Services Board includes Natural Resources Wales, Betsi Cadwaladr University Health Board, North Wales Fire and Rescue Service, Flintshire County Council, Wrexham County Borough Council, Association of Voluntary Organisations Wrexham, Flintshire Local Voluntary Council, Coleg Cambria, DWP, North Wales Police, Wrexham Glyndwr University and Welsh Government.

The Flintshire and Wrexham Public Services Board is working with its communities to change how we do things, to make sure we will be able to face the challenges ahead such as the climate and nature emergency, and how we ensure good mental health and wellbeing for all.

A key focus for the Flintshire and Wrexham Public Service Board has been the development of a new five-year Well-being Plan, drawing on the findings of the Well-being Assessments produced in 2022. The Flintshire and Wrexham Public Services Board Well-Being Plan 2023 - 2028 has just been finalised and approved and contains two-well-being objectives for the Public Services Board over the coming five years:

- Building flourishing communities by reducing inequalities across environment, education, employment, income, and housing.
- Improve community well-being by enabling people of all ages to live safe, healthy, and independent lives.

Under these objectives are several outcomes, which fall under three themes: Children and Young People, Our Communities, and Where We Work.

The Well-being Plan 2023 – 2028 will shape the work of the Public Services Board over coming years and there will be close working with other Public Services Boards across North Wales, along with local communities.

11. Risk Management

All Council Plans, business as usual and emerging risks are identified, assessed, treated and monitored using the Council's Risk Management Framework. Risks are identified using qualitative (milestones & actions) and quantitative (performance indicators, financial) data. Now we have found ourselves out of the Covid-19 Pandemic the recovery approach is no longer required and, in some areas, has become 'business as usual'. However, risk identification is and remains a key priority for the Council. It is a continuous process which is embedded in not only our day to day (business as usual) but embedded within our Council Planning, Portfolio Business Planning, Project Management, and Partnerships (short term, medium term and long term).

12. Regulation, Audit and Inspection

The Council is regulated by organisations throughout the year. These include, amongst others, Audit Wales (AW), Estyn for Education and the Care Inspectorate Wales (CIW).

The Annual Audit Summary sets out the audit and regulatory work completed by Audit Wales of Flintshire County Council since the last annual report which was published in January 2022. Overall the Auditor General for Wales has reached a positive conclusion. "The Auditor General certified that the Council had met its remaining Local Government (Wales) Measure 2009 duties for the financial year 2021-22, as saved by an order made under the Local Government and Elections (Wales) Act 2021". No formal recommendations have been made during the year.

13. Corporate Health and Safety

The Council is committed to its duties and responsibilities as an employer for health and safety. The management of workplaces that are safe to the health of all Council employees, sub-contractors, stakeholders and members of the public sits alongside our strategic priorities as our most important obligation. We take appropriate steps to seek to protect the health, safety and well-being of all our service users, visitors and employees in everything we do.
